HALCYON HOT SPRINGS ARROW LAKES, B. C.

To the Editor:

Calling all nations to be ware of an individual who walks like a man. Called Appease-Master. Carries an umbrella in his hand and a double-cross up his sleeve. The vacillating ministers of Westminster are again wobbling toward Munich and appeasement. The unhappy spectacle of the Government of the "Greatest Empire that the world has seen" kowtowing to tyrants, who have brought untold misery to millions, is inexplicable except on the ground of national degeneracy.

During the Great War Britain promised Palestine to both Jews and Arabs, and for 20 years England has explored every avenue of escape from the dilemma. The final decision is to create an Arab-dominated state with the Jews in permanent minority. And another episode is registered on Britain's Escutcheon of dishonour.

Jews have been the scapegoats in many countries, even in Algeria, over which floats the tricolour of the country which gave to the world the declaration of the Rights of Man. The program, which was incited by fascists, claim the lives of hundreds, mostly old people and children, all of whom had their throats cut. When discontent arises, it is a political ruse to blame it on Jews or capitalism. Hitler marshaled all the shopkeepers of Germany by holding out the prospect of closing all Jewish shops.

Nations like Germany, Italy and Japan, which fill the world with homeless refugees should be ostracized, boycotted and isolated within impenetrable barriers, where they would be left to their own devices.

Injustice and crime spread like a deadly miasma. Each individual, who has any regard for justice, should make a vow that during his life no article of German, Italy and Japanese origin shall be purchased.

In Germany, in addition to direct murder, there is a cold pogrom which drives the victims from their business and occupation to die from starvation. Jew-baiting is the oldest political trump card. Hitler uses race hatred as fuel for his Nazi machine.

Citizens of the older generation of Germany look back upon happier days under Kaiser Wilhelm, who, notwithstanding vicious war propaganda, is a great, cultured and good man, worthy to reign over any country. His place has been usurped by Hitler, a victim of delusional insanity, which shows itself in great self-assertion, intense egotism, ruthless desire for power and megalomania.

The whole Jewish question is wrapped up in Palestine and any betrayal will have world wide repercussion. The management of the Palestine question has been marked by muddling and trickery. The cause of the Jews is a just cause, and the Jews would be well advised to fight it to a finish. How long will the Almighty restrain His hand from dictator robbers, rapists and baby killers? It is now the darkness of Israel's night and the depths of her humiliation.

F. E. Burnham
Brigadier-General.

Scotfield News

Local people who have gone to Berry Creek for saskatoon during the past week report the supply very small this year, as a result of spring frosts.

Public Opinion In Action

To those who have their ear to the ground, there appear to be signs that the public viewpoint on the question of substantial expenditures by the various governmental units of the country is veering in the direction of espousal of what are sometimes sneeringly referred to as "the good old virtues of thrift and economy."

If this is so and if there is a very definite and pronounced trend of public opinion in this direction, the time may not be far distant when governments will start tightening the public purse strings and when government officials, at the behest of their superiors, will commence to sit heavily on the lids of treasures.

This trend towards a changing viewpoint on the subject of public expenditures is not only apparent in many parts of the Dominion of Canada, but there are signs of it in the United States.

The phenomenon is not an unnatural one on this continent. It has been a matter of observation over a long period of years that public opinion is a very variable factor, and is inclined at times to run to extremes. The pendulum of thought on the North American continent is apt to swing in a wide arc, marking now a definite trend far to the right and now well to the left on topics of general public concern.

For some time now there has been a general disposition on the part of the majority of the people not only to condone, but to urge generous expenditure of public money, sometimes it is to be feared, without much thought of the day of reckoning which is bound to follow sooner or later.

Feeling The Burden

Now, if signs are read aright, there is a hint of a trend in the other direction. The cause of it may be difficult to diagnose but perhaps more and more people are beginning to feel the burden of taxation and to realize that there can be no surcease as long as liabilities continue to accumulate and budgets remain unbalanced.

Some very sound thoughts on this subject of the relationship between public opinion and governmental reaction are contained in the final of a series of articles by Allan Meikle, president of the Canadian Federation of Labour, in a recent issue of the Labour Review, the Federation's official organ, in which he points out that in the final analysis the solution of the railway problem depends upon the relationship of public opinion to railway labour.

"I want to lay great stress on this," writes Mr. Meikle, "because, in these days of governmental interference in economic affairs, of government attempts to control the hours that men work and the wages they receive, there is a very grave danger that the organized workers may get the impression that all that is necessary to score a great victory is to persuade the government to do this or that that thing for their advantage."

"There could not be a greater mistake. A moment's consideration should show this, for it must be obvious that the only reason that leads the government of a democratic country to undertake any protection for the wage earners is the belief that opinion will support this course. Therefore, the lasting quality of any action in aid of labour which a government may take must depend on the skill of the government in judging not only what is the attitude of public opinion at the moment, but what it is to be, at times change."

Last I should be charged with a cynical attitude, and told that democracy can surely produce anything better than a political system in which the government depends always on guessing right as to what public opinion wants; lest I be told that governments should do what is right and take the consequences—let me point out that this is all mere talk. Governments and democracies must and should be guided by public opinion. If a government decides to do something because it is right, but actually succeeds in doing something which is unpopular, the fact that the government has done this is of no importance, for the succeeding governments will simply undo it. It is the first and simplest duty of a democratic nation to consider what the voters want and to give it to them.

Too Far Sometimes

"Of course, in our times this responsive attitude of government to public opinion has carried a little too far, and we all know that governments, in this and all other democracies, are nowadays inclined to do more than give the public what the public wants. They are actually given to trying to make the public want things, so that the government may get the credit of having done what the public wants."

"It is an old story now that governments will actually try to bribe the public by great expenditures of public money—only because the public sometimes forgets that public money is the public's money, and that everyone who benefits from any sort of government expenditures is also paying a share of them."

"Indeed, experience seems to show now that the weakest elements in our economic system—the workers and the farmers—who are the elements to whom the governments generally appeal with large public expenditures, are exactly the elements who pay a disproportionately large share of the cost of running the country, and only fail to know that they do this because our indirect taxation leads them to believe that the rich pay more than their share of taxes."

A Rooftop Lookout

A striking feature of homes of old Nantucket Island is the "Vintow's Walk" which surrounds the chimney, and often the whole roof, of these old houses. Here the wives of the sailors and captains of the whaling ships which put out to Nantucket in the days of her greatness used to walk, high above the breakers, to watch for the sails of their husbands' ships returning.

Starled Canning Industry

You'll never guess who started the 'canning' industry. It was Napoleon. When the Little Corporal started out to get a mark for present-day dictators to shoot at, he offered a reward of 12,000 francs to the man who would find a way of preserving food for his armies. A forgotten Frenchman, Nicolas Appert, won.

Popular Summer Resort

More than a fortress, Gibraltar is a widely favored holiday resort visited annually by thousands, with splendid hotels, bathing beaches, gay Spanish cafe life, and regular excursions to 'the Rock,' and across the narrow straits to North Africa.

The term naval stores was applied to turpentine, rosin, and pine oil back in the days of the seagoing Phoenicians.

What X-Ray Revealed

War Veteran Carried Bullet Behind Heart For 22 Years

The London correspondent of the Ottawa Journal, tells this story: Some strange things happened during the Great War, and now and then one hears of equally strange sequels to that expensive and as it proves useless adventure. A London club cricketer, who served in the infantry during the war, and was with Allenby in Palestine, has recently been alarmed about his otherwise fairly robust health. He began spitting up blood.

After a heart specialist and a lung specialist had examined him, and pronounced his heart sound and lungs intact, a further research by X-rays was deemed advisable. It was then discovered, greatly to the cricketer's amazement, that there was a bullet embedded behind his heart. It was extracted and proved to be a Turkish one.

Now the astonishing fact about this case is that the ex-soldier concerned never knew that bullet hit him. He was in hospital for some time with a superficial shrapnel wound, but never dreamed that he had also been hit by a Turkish bullet, and was carrying it round inside him for 22 years.

Life On Mars

Astronomers Learning More About Interesting Planet

Astronomers watching the 15-mile-a-second approach of the planet Mars believe its inhabitants, if any, must be carbon dioxide breathers.

If raiders from Mars rode space ships to the earth they would need an immediate supply of dry ice. The ice would keep them near their accustomed temperatures and the carbon dioxide fumes from the melting ice would give them their kind of air.

Astronomers place Mars' noon temperature at degrees ranging downward to 120 below zero at night. Dr. Walter S. Adams, director of the Carnegie Institution's Mount Wilson observatory, reported.

Astronomers estimate that Mars, in July came within 36,030,000 miles of the earth, its nearest approach in 15 years.

The so-called canals on the planet are in for close scrutiny. Strong evidence that the lines observed on Mars are canals would support a suggestion they were built to carry water from the Polar ice caps to the huge, arid areas. Apparent dust storms will also be studied.

New Shipbuilding Record

Already 42 Vessels Have Been Launched On Clyde This Year

A new world shipbuilding record will be claimed by the Clyde this year—the record for an individual shipyard.

Within the next few months, John Brown and Co., Clydebank, will prepare for commission the largest aggregate of tonnage in the history of an individual yard.

Already 42 ships, aggregating 141,000 tons, have been launched on the Clyde this year.

In the fitting-out basins at Clydebank, John Brown and Co. have the world's largest liner, the 85,000-ton Queen Elizabeth, and the 85,000-ton Suffolk, for the New Zealand Shipping Company, in hand.

The other day the 8,000-ton cruiser Fiji, first of a class, was launched, and within a few days will be launched, in four months' time the 35,000-ton battleship, Duke of York, will leave the Clydebank yard.

Canada's Export Trade

Heavy Increase Shown For The First Six Months Of The Year

Canada's export trade for the first six months of the current calendar year was valued at $462,000,000, an increase of $71,000,000 over the same period of 1933, according to figures issued by Hon. W. D. Euler, trade minister. This represented an increase of nearly 100 per cent. over the low in the depression year of 1933.

"This increase in Canada's export trade is reflected in Canadian industrial activities," said Mr. Euler, "and shows substantial increases in the first half of 1934, compared with the corresponding part of the preceding year, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics."

All parts of Canada shared in the increase, Mr. Euler said, although the low world price for wheat flour and wood pulp obscured to some extent the full significance of the upswing.

Belief Of Mohammedans

Orthodox Mohammedans are loath to construct a building or weave a rug that has straight lines or flawless symmetry. They believe that only Allah is perfect, and that to construct a perfect building or rug is sacrilegious.

Morale Is Maintained

Following Usual Inhibits In Difficult Times Is Important

British officials and gentry blockaded in Tientsin are still dressing for dinner, dispatches say. The donning of a dinner gown or jacket at the end of the day's work may be of no importance in itself, but its value in maintaining morale when times are difficult can scarcely be gainsaid. Dressing for dinner is a ritual; and ritual, like discipline, is tonic to the soul. To kneel as for prayer is already to feel powerful. Soldiers under fire can be steadied by quiet orders to do the things they have been trained to do. The adventurer who, though lost in a jungle, continued to shave every morning, has a better chance of not losing his nerve than the man who simply lets himself go. And many a panic has been stopped or averted by the good sense of some natural leader who succeeded in persuading the frightened people back into some usual occupation whose very familiarity helped them to feel calm. The hand-dinner shirt of the English gentleman may not be the most comfortable garment in the world, but if it keeps his courage up when trouble comes it is a white cockade, it is a flag unfurled, and its use as an instrument of national policy in Tientsin blockade is at least understandable.—Chicago Daily News.

"Kill A Fly And Save A Life"

The Fly Menace Is A Very Serious National Problem

Such outdoor danger spots as manure piles, uncovered garbage, heaps of rotting matter, etc., are potential breeding places for flies, and one such spot may produce flies in millions. Now, since it is commonly known that diarrhoea and enteritis (which are synonymous with summer diarrhoea) have always been a first cause of deaths amongst children in many communities, how important it is that all the flies should be exterminated. The common house fly thrives in the filthiest surroundings and carries germs of disease and even death from its feeding places to human feeding places.

What about your home? Have you done all that is possible to clean out or to control the spots where flies are likely to breed? Have you tried to close all possible avenues of entrance to your home by screening doors and windows, repairing cracks and covering holes?

And inside your home, is all exposed food and drink covered if it so happens that flies do find their way in? In the latter emergency, any way, there is a tried and tested remedy available for getting rid of all the flies, easily and quickly and once-and-for-all. A few Wilson's Fly Pads placed in convenient spots around the house, during the fly-danger months, will give you very thorough protection. Isn't it worth a little thought and trouble to take such simple steps to minimize the risk of disease and worse, faced by your children, your family and your pets, if flies are allowed to multiply?

"How's school progressing my boy?"

"It isn't—were doing the same sums father did when he was a boy."

It isn't the calendar that needs changing, but the times.

In Pioneer Days

Woman In Nova Scotia Tells About Conditions Years Ago

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Durling, of Lawrencetown, N.S., can look back 98 years to the pioneer days of the Annapolis county village—and the time her husband charged only 25 cents for two days' board and lodging at his new hotel.

On her 98th birthday she told friends of the times when settlers used to borrow live coals from each other to light their fires, sometimes walking miles for them and nursing them carefully all the way home.

Her father and uncle cut the logs that went to construct the first cabin in the district. Paths were cut through what then was dense forest to enable them to ride on horseback. Cooking was done over a stone fire place.

The settlers grew fax and raised sheep, spinning and weaving the wool into clothing. Little was bought and there were no luxuries, she said, but all was happy. Shortly after their marriage, her husband, now dead, opened a hotel at Albany Cross which he ran for 62 years. She recalls he charged the first guest only 25 cents for a two-day stay.

It is 80 years since she married.

Spoil Tourist Attraction

Dogs Drawing Carts On Quebec Roads Now Forbidden

Present-day demands for greater safety on the highways have caught up at last with Quebec province's picturesque and historic dog carts.

Roads Minister Anatole Carignan announced Quebec's habitants no longer would be allowed to use their dogs to draw carts. The ban was placed, the minister said, "with a view to promoting safer traffic conditions."

In some sections of the province dogs have been used since the days of New France to deliver milk and other produce in rural districts. Recently, however, they have become more and more an attraction for tourists.

Dogs, wearing spectacles, fedoras and sometimes with pipes in their mouths are attached to small two-wheeled carts.

The dog carts are a familiar sight to visitors to the province, especially to those who travel the "Beauport Road" from Quebec to the famous shrine at Ste. Anne de Beaupre.

The King's Detective

Albert Canning Dislikes Publicity And Chess Is His Hobby

According to London Tit-Bits, quiet, grey-eyed Albert Canning, Special Branch police chief responsible for guarding the King and Queen in Canada, is the son of an Essex business man, was educated at a local grammar school, started his career as a Bobby at Whitechapel. He held an important post in the Intelligence Service at G.H.O. during the 1914-18 War, became leading expert in German codes, cyphers. He guarded King George V's billet in France, was the first man to enter Lille after the German occupation. He hates publicity, refuses to talk about himself, devotes much of his leisure to playing chess.

Rayon Plant At The Coast

To Establish Rayon Silk Industry At North Vancouver

Establishment of a $3,000,000 rayon silk industry, first of its kind on the Pacific coast, was announced at Vancouver by Paul Zuest, representing European interests.

Work has been started on a 32-acre site acquired on the north Vancouver waterfront, across Burrard Inlet from Vancouver, and a $2,500,000 rayon mill will be constructed next year, Mr. Zuest said. When completed the plant will employ about 1,000 persons.

Duncan stepped close and put a protecting arm about her. "That's all over, Sarah Lynn. Nothing matters, now except ourselves, and we're going to be married in three days!"

"Oh Penny!" Sarah Lynn turned to her.

She nodded. "We had to tell him. We told him you were well again, and that you were to marry Mr. Duncan. If you could have seen his look—"

"Hush!" Mrs. Dana said violently, her beautiful face darkly crimson. The gentle walls, so lately a sanctuary, now looked down on a battlefield. "Leave the room! Do you hear me, Miss Pennington?"

The first bitter and truculent tones the pretty place had ever heard. "Leave the room and leave my house!"

The governess turned a stricken look to her. "I hear, Mrs. Dana, and I understand." If in that instant she visioned the inconvenient cottage of her brother, the curate, the sharp-tongued sister-in-law, it failed to give her pause. "I will go at once. But first"—she addressed herself to Sarah Lynn—"I must tell you this. He is going away tonight; he is going away forever."

The blood came into Sarah Lynn's face and into her heart; she could feel the exquisite agony of coming alive again. She heard her own voice vaguely, as if from a distance, saying stupid and false things to her mother and Duncan Van Doren about being sorry. Then she was running. She ran down the hall and down the stairs and out of the house, and someone ran beside her, breathing hard, holding her hand. She knew it must be the old governess but she did not turn her head to look. There were dim shapes in the dark garden, figures converging upon her, figures without faces, familiar voices in unfamiliar words, Lightning, the greyhound leaping and bounding in beautiful joy.

"Come! The car's waiting!" someone said.

"I've packed a bag for you! Hurry!" said another.

There was the drumming of wings in the sky. Sarah Lynn flung her head back until it hung between her shoulder-blades to watch one star detach itself from its fellows and move steadily away.

"Oh, Gunmar, wait for me!" she gave a desolate cry.

"That isn't Gunmar, goose!" Sally Ann said ruggedly. "But we'll take you to him! Come, hurry!"

They were hurrying her down the driveway, one on each side of her, another pattering behind.

Miss Pennington's voice said, "Bless you!" and then there were no footsteps following. Sarah Lynn heard her saying, "Oh Mr. Duncan, I'm so truly sorry, but it's no use, sir! I tell you, it's no use!"

Mary Dana Webster flung words back over her shoulder, kind words but final, breathless with her haste, and there was Duncan's voice, bitter and proud and hurt, and then silence.

"Here we are! Uncle Lynn's car—he's here! Get in, Sarah Lynn!"

Her Uncle Lynn's hand, his arm about her; excited voices, kind, concerned, triumphant; a cloak wrapped round her, a hat pulled down on her head, things of no importance whatever.

"Gunnar?" she said as she had said that day in the meadow after coming down in the parachute. "I want Gunnar."

"At the field, lambie. He's with Conrad Jordan now, and he's flying to Los Angeles to-night. He thinks Conrad's going with him, but he isn't. You are, Sarah Lynn!" Mary Dana Webster was crying. "You are!"

"Yes," she said contentedly. "When will I see him?"

"Don't worry about Penny!" her cousin said robustly. "I'll take care of Penny!"

"I'll bring her over to you, by and by, if you like," Sally Ann promised. "And I'll bring Lightning, too."

They were all promising things: they would see her mother, they would see her father, they would talk to Duncan, they would take care of old Penny; there was absolutely nothing for her to worry about.

But the numbness was going out of Sarah Lynn's head and heart, and she knew how silly she was requiring long devotion; behind her was shock and grief and wounded pride, and she was wrung with remorse, but before her was Gunnar, and she had no choice.

"Gunnar?" she said again. "When—"

"Almost there, Sarah Lynn!"

Then they were at the field, and Vance Le Roy was handing her out of the car, grinning, and the mechanics were crowding up, and Old Pete was gulping and blowing his nose.

"Well, God love you, Ladybug! You're a sight for sore eyes!"

"Where is Gunnar?"

"Not here yet, Miss, nor Mr. Jordan, but the ship's warmed up for 'em. Well, now, will you be stowing away again?"

Sarah Lynn laughed aloud. "Yes! I'll stow away, Pete! Help me!" That was the perfect way. Then she would not have to see him first before them all; their first moment would be their own.

The drama of it caught their fancy. They were all laughing, scurrying about, bringing robes from the car, carrying the bag, shaking her hand, patting her shoulder, wishing her luck. Then there were the good-bys, too hurried to be more than half his life-time, was the one to give her wings.

"Uncle Lynn, oh, Uncle Lynn!"

Vance Le Roy took her elbow in a hard grip and walked her to Jordan's plane, lifting his voice over the din to say this was a great break, to wish her happy Landings.

On the ground it was all noise and confusion and haste, but above it would be cold and clear and calm, and it was there she was going with Gunnar.

They helped her into the cabin and handed in her bag and arranged the robes so she could pull them over her.

"Hi! Make it snappy! Here they come!" a mechanic called.

Old Pete said, sniffing loudly, "Well, God love you, Ladybug!"

Sarah Lynn flattened herself and covered her head, and it was a comfort to hide, to be still, after the hubbub of the last hour. She was dizzy and faint and confused with the breathless excitement, the high emotional strain; after long months with blooming houseplants and trilling canaries and purring kittens; with coming to life again.

She could see nothing, but sounds and smells reached her, and she could imagine the progress of the plan—someone of the conspirators catching Conrad Jordan's eye and drawing him aside, Conrad Jordan making an excuse to Gunnar for not flying south with him, and Gunnar climbing into the ship alone.

She could feel the faint jar when he took his seat and she cuddled closer under her stifling covers.

Then they were taxiing down the field—the familiar feel of it, bumping along the earth they were about to spurn—and presently they were rising and rising, turning, circling, climbing, banking, climbing high and higher.

The moment had arrived now, to lift the prisoning robes and look at Gunnar, but she delayed, it had been too much—the suddenness, the lightning transition from the lassitude of patience and submission and tolerance to this blaze of joy. Panic overwhelmed her. She was afraid to look. Gunnar would not be there; it would be Conrad Jordan, or Vance Le Roy; she had lived so long with renunciation that happiness seemed an impossible phantom.

But at last she had courage enough to drop the corner of the robe she was holding, and she saw him. Very cautiously and lightly she lifted herself to a seat, her eyes still on him, assured and comforted, and fears fell away forever toward the dark earth far below. She thought of her mother with an uprush of remorseful tenderness, of poor, defeated Duncan, of old Penny, fighting like a lioness for her cub; she remembered her Great-grandmother's flight—"I don't want to go down, Sairy Lynn! I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

Now she would stand and take the brief steps which separated her from her lover; she would put her hand on his shoulder and speak to him, just as she had done all those ages ago on the night of Ardin's prank hatched in the Stewed Prune, but this time he would not scorn her. He would make a place for her beside him and she would be always beside him, and their cold cheeks would touch, and he would turn his head and kiss her; the queer, dark Dana girl, the Ladybug, flying away in the night.

"I want to keep on going up and up and up!"

As she had delayed to look at him through terror that he might not be there, so now she dallied with the rapture of the impending moment, her heart hammering, until her gaze which had not left him for an instant began to evaluate the change she saw. It was Gunnar Thorwald, Norwegian ace, who held the stick, but it might well have been another, for the proud carriage of the head was missing, the stern set of the squared shoulders, the hard certainty, the harsh young arrogance were gone. His chin was on his breast, and he sat slumped in his seat, and in every lean line was a hurt so deep, so lonely, so intolerable that there were quick tears of tenderness in her eyes as she rose and went forward to comfort him.

Tipping Of The Earth

Levels Of The Great Lakes Changing,
According To Scientists

* Water high enough to bury all but the tops of the skyscrapers of the cities now bordering the upper Great Lakes existed only a few thousand years ago.

Evidence of fluctuations of hundreds of feet in the levels of Lakes Superior, Michigan, Huron and St. Clair, was produced for the geological and geography sections of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Prof. George Stanley of the University of Michigan.

The geological testimony is in beaches left during the ancient times. Two of these beaches, known as the Algonquin and the Nipissing, now are high above water in the northern areas and below water along the southern rims of the lakes region.

Two huge movements of nature caused them, Prof. Stanley said. First was glaciers, which dammed up the outlets of the lakes, causing rises of hundreds of feet. When ice melted, the waters dropped and the beaches were left high and dry.

The other great movement was the weight of the glaciers to the north. They depressed the land so that the entire northeast sank. When the glaciers melted, the earth's crust in that area "rebounded" slowly. This rise took the northern beaches high above water level. It sank the southern end of the beaches, like tipping a great platter.

This tipping of the Great Lakes toward the southwest, Prof. Stanley said, is still going on, very slowly.

What Is An American?

Canadians Cling Tightly As Well As Those Living In U.S.

Another thing that we hoped would disappear as a result of the amount of publicity attending the recent Royal tour was the practice of even well-informed English people referring to the United States as "America", to the displeasure of many Canadians who think that their country is just as much a part of America as the neighboring Republic.

Certain periodicals published in Great Britain continue, however, to speak of Their Majesties' visit to the United States as having been paid to "America", just as prominent Britishers are in the habit of describing the United States in the same manner. They do not sail for "the United States" but for "America"; and when something happens in the United States it is of "America" that they speak.

Many Canadians consider that they have a right to protest against such practice for they belong to America just as much as the United States, and they would like English people to differentiate between the two as the King has been careful to do—Brookville Recorder and Times.

Fewer Passports Issued

Uncertain Conditions In Europe
Blamed For Lower Tourist
Business

Fewer Canadians are travelling to Europe this year due, it is believed, to the uncertainty of the international situation. For the six months of the calendar, ended June 30, the Dominion passport department at Ottawa issued 5,000 fewer passports than last year. Renewals were also lower.

In the early months of the year the demand for passports was small. This was attributed to the Royal visit. The travelling public in general preferred to stay at home until Their Majesties had made their trip to Canada, and returned. During June a decided upswing in passport applications was noted.

In the first six months of the current year 18,100 passports were issued and 2,860 renewed. This compared with 23,333 issued during the corresponding period a year ago and 3,435 renewed.

National Survey

Veterans Greatly In Excess Of Needs
Offer Services To Country

Although the national survey of war veterans closed the end of June, reports continue to be received from the various provinces. Enquiries at Dominion command of the Canadian Legion elicit that a total of 60,033 ex-service men in Canada have now signified their willingness to co-operate with the protective forces of the country to prevent sabotage and other hostile acts in the event of an international crisis.

The number is greatly in excess of what authorities regard as ample for the purpose indicated; and Legion officials expressed gratification at the success of the survey.

The survey was undertaken as a joint effort by the national associations of war veterans. Provincial figures include Saskatchewan, 7,542; British Columbia, 4,998; Alberta, 2,945.

Where Earth Is Precious

Soil Shipped To Direction Island Has Made Gardens Possible

The most precious thing on Direction Island, lonely home of a few British employees of a cable company, is the soil which was shipped there from Christmas Island, more than 500 miles away.

The British wanted a garden, but Direction Island, one of the Cocos group in the Indian Ocean, is mostly coral with little or no soil in which vegetables could be grown. The cable company employees got tired of limited vegetables and occasional cold storage supplies received by steamer.

So they arranged with officials of the Christmas Island Phosphate Co. to send them shipments of soil, and now they spend their spare time cultivating vegetables.

Good News For Anglers

University Professor Says Citizen-ship Not Hurt By Tall Stories

The Windsor, Ont., Star says anglers who prevaricate about the size and number of their catch (and are there any who do not?) will be pleased by the statement of Dr. W. Sherwood Fox, president of the University of Western Ontario, that such a practice is no barrier to good citizenship. In other words, an angler can be a worthy citizen even if he is a big liar.

Dates Could Be Changed

So Most National Holidays Would Be Observed On Monday

The Financial Post submits that only the vagaries of an obsolete calendar dictate the days on which national holidays are observed in Canada, and again presses the proposal that Empire Day be observed on the third Monday of the month of May and Dominion Day on the first Monday in July. There would be the preceding Sunday in each case when the spiritual significance of the two anniversaries could be emphasized, and there would be the long holiday in any event to benefit the greater number. Thousands of wage-earners would appreciate the change from the present system and the whole national economy would be strengthened. This year, it is true, as the Financial Post says, the retail stores by losing the traditional Saturday are the chief losers. Last year Dominion Day, observed on a Friday did not make sense.

Just why Parliament should be obdurate against a commonsense change in national holiday observance is a mystery. Why hold fast to dates rather than improve the ways? It was good business to allow the first Monday in September set aside as Labor Day, and the Government also sets a Monday for Thanksgiving Day. Of course, Christmas is in a different category. —St. Catharines Standard.

Turner Valley Oil

Shareholders Received Large Dividends During First Six Months

Records of the Calgary Stock Exchange revealed that shareholders of companies operating in Turner Valley received $1,072,035 during the first six months of 1939, highest return on investment for any corresponding period in history of the oil and gas field in Southern Alberta.

During the same period a year ago dividends totalled $765,461.

In addition to dividend payments, royalty payments for the period approximated $750,000, including royalties to the Provincial Government.

Royalty Oil Company, Limited, a subsidiary of the Imperial Oil, made the largest six-month dividend payment of $835,790.

Greatest Adornment

It is estimated that before sailing from Halifax for England Queen Elizabeth wore some 60 different gowns during the Royal tour. An infectious smile, which never changed was, however, her greatest adornment.

Florence, Italy, probably contains more works of art than any similar area.

IF EVERYONE WOULD DO THEIR PART FLIES WOULD NOT REMAIN A HEALTH PROBLEM

A female house fly deposits 100 to 150 eggs at one time and, from this batch of eggs, it may be less than two weeks, in warm weather before the winged flies emerge. It is obvious, then, how quickly they may multiply, and, in any communities where they are left unmolested, they may bring a real epidemic of sickness and disease; for they are carriers of typhoid and other germs. In their breeding places which are usually out-of-doors, or garbage, manure piles and similar situations, could be eliminated, this would reduce the fly menace to a very minor problem but, unfortunately, this cannot be adequately done. The flies must, therefore, be prevented from carrying filth and dangerous germs from out-of-doors onto feeding bottles, food or drink that is left exposed inside the home.

As we have already said, the most important thing is to clean up thoroughly where potential breeding places exist out-of-doors, particularly adjoining the house. To prevent flies entering the house, doors and windows must be screened. Children's cribs should be protected and all exposed food or drink covered. However, whatever is done, (and there is a surprisingly large number of people who are not interested enough to do anything), flies have a way of entering most homes in small or large numbers.

In such a case, a few Wilson's Fly Pads, put in convenient places around the house, all the time until cool weather comes and the fly danger is over, will effectively stop their activities. They work quickly, cleanly and kill all the flies.

Join your fellow citizens, who believe in a safer, cleaner community for the children and public at large, by doing your part to combat and eliminate the fly menace.—Advertisement.

Notice to Stock Owners re THE BRAND ACT

The Brand Act, Chapter 61 of the Revised Statutes of Alberta, 1922, as amended, stipulates:
"Section 17.—Any person who—
(a) brands, or directs, aids or abets in branding any stock with a brand, vent or mark which has not been recorded under the provisions of this Act or which has been cancelled thereunder;
shall be guilty of an offence and shall in addition to any other penalty to which he may be subject by law, be liable on summary conviction thereof, to a penalty not exceeding the sum of Two Hundred Dollars and costs."

It is illegal to use an unregistered brand. Furthermore, stock owners may lose any stock branded with unregistered brands, through other persons registering those brands and thereby securing legal claims on animals bearing them.

Protect your own interests by registering your brand with the BRAND RECORDER, DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, EDMONTON, at once.

CFAC Stampede Studio Viewed By Thousands

At last the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede is over. We're rested up a bit and able to take stock of things. We are more than gratified to find that listeners everywhere were pleased with our effort, in building our model studio, as shown by interviews and chats, and also by the number of letters we have received. It makes us feel that after all those long weary hours were not in vain.

Listeners from all parts of Alberta stopped by to see their favorite announcers and artists at work, and to have a friendly word with us. We gleaned a wealth of interesting facts and valuable suggestions from them. Everyone was quite impressed that we were actually broadcasting from there—that it wasn't a 'dummy' setup. The control unit was quite complete and people could see it in actual operation. All the announcers and operators were there at one time or another, and their names appeared on display cards so that they could be readily identified. The gold-plated microphone used by their Majesties was mounted on a stand in plain view of everyone. An instrument shown as an oscilloscope, was mounted on another stand to show a picture of the sound waves as they come over the air. Radios outside the studio were turned on loud enough for everyone in the large crowds which gathered, to hear with ease.

One of those interviewed on the air came from a mining town some where north of the Flin Flon in Manitoba, and he told us they listened to us regularly. Another was a woman from Spokane, Washington. She said 'hello' to her two sons at home. There seemed no doubt in her mind that they wouldn't hear her, even though it was in the day time. Which all adds up to one great big compliment to our chief engineer, Earle Connor.

Everyone around CFAC is 'pleased as punch' about the reception all our listeners gave our effort, and right now are making new plans for next year, to make a bigger and better display, to renew old acquaintances, and to make many new ones.

In His Father's Footsteps

John Scott Trotter, Kraft Music Hall bandleader heard over CFAC Thursday at 7 p. m. gave his 16 year old brother, Bobby, a trip to Hollywood as a present for winning a music scholarship at Northwestern University. Bobby graduates from high school this year in Charlotte, N. C. Bobby is a versatile musician. He plays the piano, conducts the high school symphony orchestra, is a drum major in a dance band, and plays the English horn in the Charlotte Symphony Orchestra. He has a great admiration for John Scott Trotter's work, but he is often critical.
